Ecotourism is a form of responsible travel that focuses on conserving the environment and supporting the well-being of local communities. Unlike traditional tourism, which often contributes to environmental degradation, ecotourism seeks to minimize negative impacts on ecosystems while promoting sustainable practices. It encourages travelers to engage with nature in a way that fosters respect for wildlife and natural habitats, often involving activities like hiking, birdwatching, and guided nature tours. One of the core principles of ecotourism is supporting local economies by providing jobs for local guides and small businesses. This not only helps preserve traditional cultures but also ensures that the economic benefits of tourism reach those who live in the areas visited. Ecotourism also plays a crucial role in environmental education. Visitors learn about the significance of conservation, biodiversity, and the challenges posed by climate change. Ultimately, ecotourism aims to create a balance where tourism can thrive without compromising the natural beauty and resources that make these destinations special in the first place.

1. Have you ever travelled to another country? What did you enjoy most?

Yes, I've been to a few countries with my family. What I enjoyed most was seeing new places and trying different kinds of food. It was so cool to experience other cultures and meet people from different backgrounds.

2. Would you rather travel alone, with friends or with your family? Why?

I'd rather travel with friends because it's more fun and exciting. We can do activities we all enjoy, and there's always someone to laugh with or take photos.

3. Do you prefer beach holidays, city trips or adventures in nature? Why?

I prefer city trips because I like exploring new places, visiting museums, and trying local food. There's always something happening in a big city, so you never get bored.

4. Where do teenagers in your country usually go on holidays?

Most teenagers here go to the seaside, especially during summer. Some also travel to big cities like Moscow or St. Petersburg to hang out and do some sightseeing.

5. What is the most convenient type of transport when travelling?

I think planes are the most convenient because they're fast, especially if you're going far. But trains can also be a good option if you want a more relaxed journey.

- 3.2
1. What are some of the most famous tourist attractions in Russia?

Some of the most famous ones are Red Square and the Kremlin in Moscow, and the Hermitage Museum in St. Petersburg. These places are full of history and really impressive to see in person. People also love visiting Lake Baikal and the Trans-Siberian Railway for something more adventurous.

2. Can you name any famous Russian museums? Which one would you recommend to visitors?

Yes, of course! The Hermitage in St. Petersburg is one of the largest and most famous museums in the world. I would definitely recommend it – it has an amazing art collection and the building itself is stunning. The Tretyakov Gallery in Moscow is also great for those interested in Russian art.

3. Which places in Russia are known for beautiful nature?

Russia has many places with breathtaking nature. Lake Baikal is probably the most famous – it's the deepest lake in the world and super clean. The Altai Mountains and Kamchatka are also amazing, especially for hiking and seeing wild landscapes. Even near Sochi, there are beautiful national parks.

4. What do tourists usually buy as souvenirs from Russia?

Tourists usually buy matryoshka dolls, traditional wooden crafts, and Russian shawls. Some also get magnets, amber jewelry, or local sweets like pryaniki. Items with Soviet symbols or Russian hats (ushankas) are also very popular.

5. What traditional Russian food would you recommend to a foreign tourist?

I'd recommend trying borscht, which is a beetroot soup, and also pelmeni – they're like dumplings and really tasty. Blini with jam or sour cream are also delicious. For dessert, medovik (a honey cake) is a must-try!

4.1 Hi John! I wanted to tell you about the two photos I picked for our school project "Sightseeing". I can't send them to you right now because of a technical issue, but I'll describe them so you can imagine them.

The first photo shows a group of tourists walking in a historical part of a city. There's a woman in front of them explaining something, and everyone looks interested and engaged. The second photo shows a young woman standing somewhere in the city and sightseeing. She's holding a city map, and it looks like she's figuring out where to go next.

These pictures are great for our project because they show two different ways of sightseeing – one with a guide and one on your own.

No doubt, each way of sightseeing has its own pros and cons. For example, going with a tour guide is really convenient because they explain everything and make sure you don't miss any important places. But the downside is that you have to follow a fixed schedule, and there's not much flexibility.

On the other hand, sightseeing alone gives you total freedom – you can explore at your own pace and get off the beaten track. However, it can be easy to get lost or miss some interesting facts without a guide.

Personally, I would prefer sightseeing on my own. I like discovering places in my own time and stopping whenever something catches my eye. It feels more adventurous!

That's all I wanted to tell you about these pictures. What do you think about them? I will be waiting for your reply. Bye-bye!

4.2 Hi John! Guess what? I have found two pictures to illustrate our project "Holidays". Unfortunately, for some technical reasons I cannot send them now. So, let me describe them to you.

In the first picture, there's a family of four having fun at the beach. They're wearing sunglasses and light summer clothes, and it looks like they're enjoying a sunny day by the sea. As for the second picture, it shows a group of people dressed in winter gear, sitting in the snow with snowboards, probably preparing for a ride down the slopes.

These pictures are perfect for our project because they illustrate two different types of holidays – a summer beach holiday and a winter sports holiday. The family in the first picture is relaxing by the sea and enjoying warm weather, while the people from the second picture are taking part in active winter sports like snowboarding.

No doubt, these two types of holidays have their own positive and negative points. Speaking of beach holidays, they're great for relaxing, sunbathing, and swimming, and you don't need much special equipment. However, they can get boring after a while if you like being active, and the weather can sometimes be too hot. You might have heatstroke or get sunburned. When it comes to winter holidays, they're exciting, full of adrenaline, and you get to learn new skills like skiing or snowboarding. On the other hand, they can be expensive, especially if you need to rent gear or stay at a ski resort. Plus, it's easier to catch a cold when the temperature is low.

Personally, I would prefer to go on beach holidays because I really enjoy warm weather, swimming in the sea, and just chilling with friends without worrying about cold or injuries.

That's all I wanted to tell you about these pictures. What do you think about them? I will be waiting for your reply. Bye-bye!
